Evaluation of Thiopurine Methyltransferase Genotype in Skin Autoimmune Disorders on Thiopurine Drugs Referring to Faghihi Hospital

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reference</th>
<th>Authors</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>IR.SUMS.MED.REC.1397.426</td>
<td>Maral Mokhtari, S. Nekooee</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Authors

Maral Mokhtari, S. Nekooee

Contact

Maral Mokhtari: maral_mokhtari@yahoo.com
S. Nekooee: s.nekooee@gmail.com

Summary

This study aimed to evaluate the thiopurine methyltransferase (TPMT) genotype in patients with skin autoimmune disorders treated with thiopurine drugs at Faghihi Hospital. The results showed a significant correlation between TPMT genotype and the effectiveness of thiopurine treatment in these patients.